

Assistant Professor of Biology

The Department of Biology at Elizabethtown College invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor of Biology position in the area of genetics to begin August 2019.

Qualified applicants will be committed to dynamic and innovative teaching, to maintaining a research program involving undergraduate students, and to individualized student advising. Teaching expectations are twelve contact hours per week including laboratories. The successful candidate will teach courses in genetics, introductory biology, and an upper level elective of their choice that complements existing curriculum. The position will also require a commitment to both departmental and institutional service.

A Ph.D. in a biological field and a commitment to undergraduate education are essential; postdoctoral experience is desirable.

We seek an individual whose research interests focus on plant biology, complementing existing faculty expertise. Applicants whose research involves population genetics and/or computational biology are highly encouraged to apply. We are especially interested in applicants with diverse backgrounds, and experiences, and in applicants with a commitment to creating inclusive learning environments.

Interested candidates may apply at: <http://etown.peopleadmin.com/postings/1547>

Applications should include a cover letter, curriculum vitae, a statement of teaching and research interests, and email addresses for three references. References will be contacted by Elizabethtown College to submit letters of recommendation electronically.

Review of applications will begin November 1st, and will continue until a successful candidate is found. Inquiries can be addressed to Dr. Jodi L. Yorty, Biology Dept. Chair (yortyj@etown.edu).
